

CYBERBULLYING ON CAMPUS:

POLICY AND PRACTICE IN A 'LAWLESS' WORLD

A one-day conference for professionals working in further and higher education

3 September 2009, University of Westminster, central London

Cyberbullying is the term given to bullying carried out through electronic means such as mobile phones texts, social networking sites, email and chatrooms.

WHY CYBERBULLYING?

We have all heard about the rise of cyberbullying in schools using email, social networking sites and mobile phones with new strategies being implemented at local level via the Department for Children, Schools and Families, and local education authorities; but what about those who are 18+ and still in education, as well as those who are employed on campus? The strategies strangely appear to be non-existent for adults and for those studying or working in our further and higher education institutions.

As more and more of us sign up to social networking, use email, or spend increasing amounts of time texting, we are making ourselves increasingly and unknowingly susceptible to having facts about us known more widely.

"Every technological innovation creates deviant as well as respectable behavior". (Edgley and Kiser 1981 p5)

Those in authority, or those who work with the victims, need to possess an understanding of the technology and the current regulation of cyberbullying so they can formulate appropriate policies and strategies to

JOIN US

Join the country's foremost experts on cyberbullying - from experts in dealing with the psychological and counselling aspects, to specialists in workplace bullying - to gain invaluable new insights into this growing and harmful activity.

Our keynote speaker will be professor Michael Sheehan, Professor of Management and a Co-Director of Centre for Research on Workplace Behaviours, University of Glamorgan, who will speak on workplace bullying in higher education, the evidence, implications and propositions.

Our plenary speakers include:

Michael Sheehan, professor of management and a co-director of the Centre for Research on Workplace Behaviours, University of Glamorgan, will deliver the keynote presentation and will speak on the work of the centre and their research into campus bullying.

Dr Monica Whitty, reader in psychology, Nottingham Trent University, will present her work on the sexy side of the internet and cyberstalking, as well host a workshop session on raising the awareness of cyberstalking as a crime.

Dr Thomas Chesney, Head of Undergraduate Admissions, University of Nottingham and Dr Iain Coyne, Associate Professor in Occupational Psychology, University of Nottingham, will present jointly on Second effectively guard against, and deal with, the fall-out from the actions of the cyberbullies.

This conference will offer invaluable new insights into this under-explored, but rising scourge in our sector, and on the lives and experiences of those working or studying on campus, and offer some possible solutions for those engaged in either policy or practice, or both.

Whatever your role within your institution, the identification, management and response to the cyberbullies has an impact on us all. Often there are conflicts of interest, and also a lack of understanding when the behavior is online.

Cyberbullying is the term given to bullying carried out through electronic means such as mobile phones texts, social networking sites, email and chatrooms. Where it differs from the more traditional form of bullying is that for the person on the receiving end there is no escape. Often the perpetrators are anonymous and occasionally comments are posted about the bullied of which they have no knowledge.

Life and how the cyberbullying have infiltrated this domain.

Dr Subhajit Basu, lecturer in law and information technology, Queen's University Belfast and Richard Jones, reader in law and information technology, Liverpool John Moores University, will present jointly on the legal aspects of cyberbullying.

"A recent UK study found that 25 per cent of children and young people had been 'cyberbullied', feeling that there is no way out and nobody to help, some even contemplate suicide as the only way to escape. If this is the scenario for under-18s, what is happening in the post-18 arena?"

KEY ISSUES

Our speakers will spark debates on the most important challenges facing staff and students in the post-18 education environment. Their presentations will aim to give you new insights into, and a fresh perspective on, this modern technologically-based activity.

Sessions cover:

- * the sexy side of the internet
- * bullying within Second Life
- * legal aspects of cyberbullying
- * regulation of cyberstalking
- * use and abuse of phone technology
- * managing your professional reputation
- * the crime of cyberstalking, and
- * a series of afternoon workshops where specific issues can be further developed and discussed

ADDRESSING YOUR PROFESSIONAL NEEDS

Whatever your role or position in your board, trust, hospital, department, ward or centre, you will discover how you can learn from the principles of using social marketing techniques to help make a real improvement to the lives of your patients or clients.

- Sessions are designed to give you a cross-section of practical models for successful social marketing within many areas of delivery
- Our speakers are all leaders in their fields who will help you to advance your knowledge of social marketing by engaging with the specific challenges within the discipline.
- By attending the workshops in the afternoon you will hear your peers talk about specific projects and strategies and how they were formulated, executed and evaluated.
- This is your opportunity for professional development in one of marketing's fastest-moving and most complex fields.

WHY YOU SHOULD ATTEND?

The event promises to provide an exciting mix of sessions as speakers discuss the many aspects of putting a successful social marketing intervention together. They will offer views on how social marketing techniques can be applied in an ever-changing, complex and free society for the public good.

You will have the opportunity to discuss how you can plan your social marketing campaigns and consider new ways of making your messages look more attractive as the 'competition' works in opposition.

By attending you will:

- understand the nature of social marketing within a Scottish health policy context
- hear from experts in their field about social marketing and the importance of the four As: appealing, affordable, available, appreciated
- discover how a number of your peers approach the challenges laid before them and how they implement the techniques of social marketing to best affect
- understand the social marketing journey and how your role as a health-care or related professional relates to policy directives and targets
- benefit from the latest thinking and network with colleagues

THE CONFERENCE VENUE

University of Westminster
Cavendish campus
115 New Cavendish Street
London W1W 6UW

Getting there

The Cavendish campus of the University of Westminster is located within easy reach of many tube and mainline stations and is in the shadow of the BT Tower.

The nearest tube stations are: Goodge Street (Northern line), Great Portland Street (Metropolitan, Circle and Hammersmith & City lines), and Warren Street (Northern and Victoria lines).

There are many bus routes which use Tottenham Court Road and Euston Road. If you choose your stop carefully you will only be about five minutes' walk away.

The nearest mainline station is Euston, which is about 15 minutes walk away. Further afield are King's Cross, St. Pancras, and Thameslink railway stations.

Accommodation

Accommodation is not included in the conference fee. However, if you are travelling far you may wish to consider staying in London the night before the conference. The conference date falls within the summer holiday months and as a result, the University of Westminster is able to offer accommodation in its halls of residence, subject to availability. Should you wish to enquire about the University's accommodation please see: www.wmin.ac.uk/page-5198

In addition, there is a huge choice of accommodation available in central London, ranging from the cheap-and-cheerful to luxury five star! The University has negotiated special rates at a number of hotels for its staff, students and visitors, for further information please see: www.wmin.ac.uk/page-7301

You could also Google with your specific requirements, please but bear in mind that hotels closest to the venue will be in the WC1 postcode area.

Leisure time

Situated in the very heart of London, the University is ideally located for visitor attractions, restaurants, shops, theatres and cinemas.

London is a vibrant, cosmopolitan city, famed for its culture, its architecture, its nightlife and its green spaces. It offers a wealth of activities to visitors, from galleries and museums, to superb shops and a vast range of restaurants and cafes.

The public/health sector discount rate(s) applies to NHS boards and trusts / central and local government / PCTs / SHAs / voluntary organisations / trade unions / educational institution). All other categories of organisation do not qualify. Definition of the health/public sector will be determined by the delegate having a bona fide position and work address or email which includes 'nhs', 'org', 'gov', 'ac', 'edu' or equivalent.

3. Cancellation

Conference fees are payable in full before the start of the conference. Should you be unable to attend, a substitute delegate from your institution only is welcome at no extra charge; you are however required to notify Discovering Futures (tel: +44 (0) 20 7099 6033) of such substitute delegate in good time. In the event of cancellation of your place on the conference, cancellation fees will apply as follows:

Date of cancellation	Cancellation Fee (% of full cost)
21 days or more:	20%
Between 14-21 days	50%
Less than 14 days	100%
Failure to attend	100%

In the case of force majeure or any eventuality beyond our reasonable control we will not offer refunds unless the conference is cancelled. Reasons beyond our reasonable control include, but are not limited to: failure of electricity, heating or water supplies, weather conditions, industrial action, terrorist alert, fire or flood. In this eventuality we will retain up to 50% of the conference fee to cover administration costs. Discovering Futures reserves the right to make changes to the programme, location and/or speakers. Discovering Futures do not accept any liability for delegates travel or accommodation costs should the event be rescheduled, postponed or cancelled.

4. Liabilities

Discovering Futures shall not accept responsibility for any loss or damage to property (including personal property) brought onto the conference premises, howsoever incurred.

Discovering Futures shall not be liable, whether in contract, tort or otherwise, for any loss, consequential loss (which shall include but which shall not be limited to loss of business revenue or profits, anticipated savings or wasted expenditure), damage or injury (except personal injury or death as a result of negligence by Discovering Futures) which may arise out of, or in connection with, your attendance of the Discovering Futures conference.

You shall be responsible for any loss or damage caused to any property by you whilst attending the Discovering Futures conference. In the event of such loss or damage, you shall pay Discovering Futures on demand the amount required to make good or remedy such loss or damage. Where it is believed such loss or damage has occurred, Discovering Futures will contact you as quickly as possible with particulars of such loss or damage.

Delegates are responsible for their own safety and security, and are advised to keep doors and windows locked when meeting rooms are unoccupied.

5. Special requests

If any delegate has any special request or a physical condition requiring special arrangements you must advise Discovering Futures at the time of booking (or as soon as you become aware, if later), and clearly note this on the booking form or via email to: info@discoveringfutures.com

Confirmation that a special request has been noted, or is included on the booking form, is not confirmation that your request will be met. All special requests of this nature are subject to availability.

6. Accuracy of Promotional Material

All information and prices shown in promotional material for the Discovering Futures conference (including, but not limited to, brochures, flyers, adverts and the website) are correct at the time of print. However, these may have changed by the time you make your booking. Whilst every effort is made to ensure the accuracy of this information, regrettably errors or changes in prices and facilities changes may occur. You must therefore ensure that you check with Discovering Futures all details at the time of making the booking.

7. Animals or Pets

No animals or pets of any kind, except guide dogs, are allowed on the premises.

8. Privacy Policy

Discovering Futures does not sell, trade or rent your personal information to others. Your details will be added to the Discovering Futures database in order to process your conference booking, and to keep you up-to-date with the conference arrangements. We would like to use your details to inform you of further Discovering Futures events in the future. If you do not wish to receive any further information from us, whether by post or email, please notify us at the address below or as shown on our website.

Booking a place on this conference indicates acceptance of these terms and conditions.

ABOUT US

Discovering Futures was set up in 2006 by marketing and communications consultant Robert Hawker. In recognition that the world of public policy making and implementation is in constant flux, Discovering Futures provides a forum for new ideas and practical solutions for today's busy public sector professionals.

Discovering Futures conferences focus on the very latest developments in the sector and equip delegates with the knowledge and practical skills they need to apply these concepts in their own organisations.

Speakers are drawn from the highest levels of health, public policy-making, education, industry and the public sector. These professionals are setting the agenda in their fields, helping organisations to retain their competitive advantage and to flourish in challenging times. Senior figures from Apple, The British Council, Bebo, GCap Media, Teachers' TV, and The Guardian, as well as experts from over 30 universities, have all contributed to our conferences, providing a multi-faceted view of the key themes and complementing the diverse range of speakers.

Each Discovering Futures conference is designed and managed by a team of experts, led by Robert Hawker and his associates. For this conference, on 'Cyberbullying on campus', we are delighted to be working in partnership with Amy Binns, a lecturer in media and journalism at the University of Huddersfield.

Our partners and contributors are known as innovators and leaders in their fields, with specialist knowledge of their areas and chosen for their relevance to the conference theme. Many are keen to share their knowledge and skills with colleagues in the sector and profession. This collaboration ensures that our delegates benefit from the most up-to-date intelligence and the most effective tools in the workplace today. Our conferences attract large audiences of delegates representing the broad spectrum of providers in the UK today. Indeed, the events have also attracted colleagues from a number of institutions in the EU. We respond to their needs and are committed to the continuous improvement of our events, using delegate feedback to create conferences that will help our clients to thrive in today's increasingly competitive marketplace.

Robert Hawker: "The public and health sectors today need to exploit the latest technologies and management solutions. The challenge is staying ahead of the game, especially if heavy workloads are stopping you from getting the staff development you need."

"With Discovering Futures conferences we aim to encapsulate the best ideas and deliver them in a useful and highly enjoyable package that will help you to kickstart your plan of action."

Robert Hawker has worked in marketing and communications roles in higher education for 16 years, most recently at director level at Roehampton University. Here he led a team of 27, managing the annual cycle of recruitment activities to meet the university's targets, whilst ensuring that the full mix of marketing channels – from media to website – supported this goal. He is a highly experienced events organiser. His portfolio includes royal, ministerial and VIP visits, high-level receptions, chancellor installations, student open days, the opening of new buildings and annual series of graduation ceremonies.
